Fire Prevention Safety Tip: Carbon Monoxide Detectors

Carbon monoxide poisoning can happen any time, but according to NFPA's Non-Fire Carbon Monoxide Incidents Fact Sheet, occurrences are more common between the months of November and February. As part of their "Put a Freeze on Winter Fires" campaign to promote fire safety during the winter, NFPA and the United States Fire Administration encourage the public to be aware of the dangers of this invisible, odorless, and colorless gas.
