Teenagers And Mobile Apps: Example - “kik”

New Concerns For Parents Regarding Online Safety And Private Messaging Services.

The Pew Research Center reports the use of Facebook with teenagers has declined. Teens are now using other services such as Instagram and mobile phone apps to communicate with their friends. “kik” the mobile app for iPhones and Droids has raised concerns for parents because teens are sending and receiving inappropriate pictures. The “kik” app requires the user to be 17 years of age to download but, that hasn’t stopped pre-teens with mobile devices from downloading the app. The Internet Safety.com blog has an excellent story for parents about the “kik” app. Click on the image below for details.

WEEKLY FIRE REPORT

Total Calls for Service year to date: 776

Significant Fire Events:

Preparing For A Disaster: Disasters can occur suddenly and without warning. They can be frightening for adults, but they can also be traumatic for children. Children need to know what to do when an emergency situation arises. Families should prepare an emergency supply kit and develop a plan. Practice your plan so each person will remember what to do in a disaster situation. Every person in your home should play a part in response and recovery efforts. Remember: Keep your plan simple and make sure every family member knows the details.
